New Homes Permits Boost Total to Million

Brookside Homes this week took out permits for 120 new homes to be built at the company's subdivision, the old La Mesa Golf and Country Club site, at the east edge of Lemon Grove.

The 120 permits were issued at $6480 each, a total of $777,600. This makes a total in permits so far issued for this new subdivision, of $1,383,350.

Construction work is progressing at a rapid pace at Brookside.

Reapportionment Coming Up Soon

San Diego County will have another Assemblyman under the new reapportionment bill which will be up for consideration at the January session of the General Assembly.

A meeting is being held in the San Diego Chamber of Commerce this afternoon to hear a report of a committee appointed December 16 to study the matter.

The committee reported that it recommends that the two Assembly Districts in the city remain substantially as they are now constituted, and that a committee was appointed to study the possibility of dividing the 80th District into two districts.

This latter committee is making its report this afternoon. The members of the committee are James Archer, La Jolla; Assemblyman Ralph Cloyed, Chula Vista; Edward S. Bulen, Escondido; Kier Brooks, Coronado; Ray D. Johnson, Oceanside; Franklin Barnes, Julian; Duane A. Hawkins, National City; Argyle B. Arnett, La Mesa.

San Diego County has a population of 535,967 in the 1950 census, and the Assembly Districts as follows: 78th, San Diego City (north) 200,000; 79th, San Diego City (south), 139,000; 80th San Diego County, 196,000.

The problem facing the committee, and the General Assembly later, is to carve out four districts of nearly equal population, and still maintain two

by Mae Rex Graham

At this Christmas season, when our America stands at the cross roads, I should like to share with you a poem written by Arletta Christman Harvey, wife of a Methodist minister. She has written many inspiring messages and stories in prose and poetry published in booklet form, many of which are among my most cherished possessions.

Let this be Christmas—holy,
As it never has before,
Because you kneel on Christmas Day
Within the stable door;
Because your heart has opened
To the suffering of a world,
And given cheer
Where none has cause to smile;
Because your hands in mercy,
Have reached across the miles
With love that has expected no return!

O friend, because you've listened
To hear the angels' song
Because like lowly shepherds,
His Star leads you along,—
Your Christmas shall be—holy!

More than ever before, this is the time when we must celebrate the birth of the Christ child with hearts filled with gratitude for God's gift of his Son, who came to bring Peace on earth.

Why have we strayed so far from peace? Because as a Christian Nation we have failed to follow the Savior's teachings and commands.

We have allowed leaders of our Nation to propagate self and greed before the duties they swore to defend in their oath of office.

We have sat complacently by while the greatest foe the world has ever known—Communism—has fastened its grip upon the entire world and infiltrated into every community in our Nation.

As we pray this Christmas day, may we all petition Almighty God to give our leaders wisdom and strength to hold the enemy at bay until the day when Christian churches can fulfil Christ's command: "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel."

Only the inculcation of the Savior's teachings in all the world can bring about "Peace on earth, good will to men."

Typical of the hourly increases are the 12 cent boost for laborers, helpers and toolmakers and the 15 cent increase for electricians and machinists.

Send Checks for TB Seals Now

A final pre-Christmas request that residents of San Diego County, who have not sent their checks for their TB Christmas Seals, do so this week came today from Mrs. Frank L. Hope, chairman of the Tuberculosis and Health Association's annual campaign.

"We need $85,000 for our 1951 program," Mrs. Hope said. Public response to date has been fine, but we still have a long way to go to reach our goal. It is essential that we intensify our attack on tuberculosis if we are to hold and extend the advances already made against the disease. The problem is still serious in San Diego County, and we cannot afford to relax. If you haven't yet sent your check for the 1950 seals, please do so this week."

Seal funds support a local program of education and community organization, and pay this areas share of the state and national programs, including medical research.

New Highway to the East Outlined

Members and guests at the December meeting of the San Diego County Development Federation heard Dr. Willis H. Miller, county planning director, discuss a proposed new highway to Imperial County at House of Hospitality, Balboa Park, Tuesday evening.

The new highway would be shorter, faster and lower than existing Routes 80 and 94, the speaker said.

The new road would use 94 out of San Diego and cut through Lyon Valley, rejoining 94 and 80 Jacumba.

The plan calls for the expenditure of $15 million within the next 20 years. It would set up regional routes, interurban roads, farm-to-market highways and recreational roads, with belt-line roads in the metropolitan area for ready access.

Speeds of 70 miles an hour in the lowlands, 60 in the hills and 50 in the mountains for the freeways was proposed by Miller, with speeds on the main roads below the freeway class, of 60, 50 and 40 miles.

Ted Haaf, Lemon Grove, presided, as president of the San Diego County Development Federation.

Those attending from Lemon Grove were Mr. and Mrs. Chris Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Schnell, Tom Parsons and his mother, and Mr. and Mrs. Haaf.

The Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND

DREW PEARSON

False Alarm

IT WAS ALL HUSHED up, but one day recently practically every top military man in Washington was anxiously scanning the sky in anticipation of an enemy air raid on the nation's capital.

Reason for their concern was a cable from India which read: "Alert all U. S. cities they are due to be bombed within the next twenty-four hours."

Astonished clerks at the message center immediately made a dozen copies—on message center forms—and shot them out to the key offices. The cryptic message, on official stationery, had all the appearances of being an official warning, and remembering how Washington was caught asleep during Pearl Harbor, word of the impending attack was flashed from the Pentagon to every key office throughout the city—including the White House.

Uniformed couriers sped the message to the national security council, a sergeant raced into Defense Secretary Marshall's office, the central intelligence agency was alerted, Pentagon stenographers hearing the news made frantic phone calls to advise their friends and relatives. Tension was mounting to the breaking point.

Then the bubble burst amid a sea of very red faces.

A few calm officers decided to check the name signed to the cable from India. They discovered that the signer wasn't employed by the state department, wasn't a CIA agent, wasn't in army, navy or air intelligence. In fact, he wasn't a U. S. government employee of any kind.

He was, they learned, an American tourist stopping off in India. Examination of the original cable revealed it had been sent on November 23.

One officer glanced at a calendar. "November 23 was Thanksgiving day," he said. Then he queried, "What are some Americans apt to do if they're in India on Thanksgiving day?"

"Get drunk," was the reply.

The assembled officers nodded in agreement. Washington was saved.

Soviet Secret Weapons

American ordnance officers are popeyed at Soviet weapons, captured in Korea. They are so amazed that they are hastily revising their estimates of Russian military might and are convinced that the United States has been underestimating Russian strength by as much as 80 per cent.

A preliminary survey indicates that Russia sent nearly two billion dollars worth of military aid to North Korea, which is more than the total American deliveries to all North Atlantic pact countries combined. And this does not include planes and ships which the Russians did not supply to North Korea in quantity.

Furthermore, markings on the equipment have been traced to Russian factories that U. S. intelligence thought were producing civilian goods. These captured weapons are now being tested and evaluated at the Aberdeen, Md., ordnance center.

The most effective weapons captured from the North Koreans are heavy mortars and burp guns, which laid down the most terrific firepower that the American army has ever faced.

For example, the captured Russian 120-mm. trench mortar is heavier than the comparable 4.2-inch U. S. mortar; also fires 1,600 yards farther. In addition, the North Koreans used a mortar even heavier than the 120-mm., which the army has not yet evaluated.

The Russian burp gun has a drum-type magazine and fires at a terrifically rapid rate. Most of these were inscribed with 1950 manufacturing markings, thus refuting the Soviet claim that they had shipped no arms to North Korea since 1945.

Soviet Jeep

Probably the most fascinating captured equipment is the Russian jeep. This is slightly larger and more comfortable than the U. S. model, is equipped with softer seats, double springs and better shock absorbers. However, its vital parts are still modeled after the out-moded A and B types, made by Ford.

Several BA-64 light-armored cars were also captured. However, they are distinctly inferior to the American M-8 in maneuverability, firepower and defense against small arms.

Most captured Soviet rifles are modeled after the U. S. Springfield 1903. They weigh 10 pounds, use five-round clips and fire at a slower rate than modern U. S. rifles.

However, a novel, hand-shoulder antitank gun was captured that is easy to maneuver and can pierce armor up to two and one-half inches. The Russian-made goryunov machine gun can also be used against aircraft by reversing the gun and elevating the tail. Its effective range is 900 yards but it is difficult to carry and load.

"SELF PORTRAIT" . . . This picture by Joseph Wasilauskas, Waterbury, Conn., won first prize and grand prize in the 1950 annual newspaper national snapshot awards competition. Wasilauskas blew smoke rings for his baby daughter and at the same time operated his camera by remote control in making his winning picture of himself and baby. He is a veteran, now employed in a Waterbury watch factory.

FAMILY REUNION IN KOREA . . . P.F.C. Billy Gibson, fifth marines, and his sister, 1st Lt. Margaret Gibson, stage an impromptu reunion at the 121st army evacuation hospital in Hamhung where Margaret serves in the army nurse corps. The brother and sister barely missed an earlier meeting at Inchon. Gibson thought Margaret was still stationed in San Francisco, where he last saw her in July before leaving for Korea. They live in Greenville, Ala.

CORN CHAMPION . . . A happy Charles N. Fischer, who lives in Shelbyville, Ind., won the title of "corn king" for the third time at the recent International Livestock Exposition in Chicago. He was champion in 1940 and 1949. Fischer says "good seed, good fertilizer, and good soil management" enabled him to produce the prize winning corn. He exhibited a 10-ear sample of Indiana certified 844D yellow dent hybrid. Hundreds of corn growers competed.

ASKS BRITISH LEAVE SUEZ . . . Abdul Rahman Azzam Pasha (left), secretary general of the Arab League, confers with U.S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson in Washington in connection with Egypt's demand for the withdrawal of British troops from the Suez canal zone. Azzam Pasha said that the presence of the British in Egypt is causing a "vacuum" in the security of the middle east. Discussions are now underway between Cairo and London on the question.

IN SUMMER'S HIDEOUT . . . The weather in Palm Springs, Calif., was sunny and warm enough for Dianne Carlson to pose at an outdoor pool while fellow citizens in the east were wearing longies to keep out sub-freezing temperatures and snow.

VENEZUELA PRESIDENT . . . Dr. German Suarez Flamerich, civilian, was installed recently as president of the junta ruling Venezuela. He succeeds Lt. Col. Carlos Degado Chalbuad, who was assassinated several months ago.

CLINCHED CONCENTRATION . . . Soviet U.N. Delegate Jacob Malik concentrates on speech of American Delegate Warren Austin accusing Red China of aggression, "outright and naked." Malik had disputed possession of the floor with Austin, claiming the floor for the Chinese Reds.

PRICE CONTROL DIRECTOR . . . Mayor Michael V. Disalle of Toledo has been offered the job of national price control director and has agreed to accept the position. He flew to Washington in a special government plane.

SOCIALIST LEADER . . . The Socialists emerged as the strongest party in Bavaria in recent state election. Rearmament was the issue which swept the Socialists to victory—they are against re-militarization of Germany.

Mrs. Emil Anderson, 3632 Wabash, Detroit, Mich., says she believes in folks being lucky and all that . . . but she says that people today are inclined to rely too much on just good luck. One thing Mrs. Anderson says, "is fact not fiction" . . . she isn't going around saying she thanks her lucky stars for feeling so good—No Sir! not Mrs. Anderson—she says she feels so good now because she is taking HADACOL. She was suffering from a deficiency of Vitamins B¹, B², Niacin, and Iron which HADACOL contains.

Here is Mrs. Anderson's own statement:

"For many years now I have had nagging aches and pains not in just a few places but all over my body—in fact I know a person couldn't have felt as miserable as I did.

"I was nervous too—so nervous that I couldn't even darn socks and the worst thing was that I couldn't eat or sleep properly. I would just eat this and that—never a full meal—and my stomach always felt bad. I was so tired all the time—seems like when I would go up two or three steps I would be completely worn out. I was just about at my wits end, not knowing what to do.

"Then while visiting my son and his wife in Morton Gap, Ky., he told me how his mother-in-law had been helped so much by HADACOL. I brought HADACOL all the way home to Detroit with me. I could tell a big difference after the second bottle. So far I have taken 6 or 7 bottles of HADACOL. What a wonderful change has taken place. I eat well and thoroughly enjoy my food, and sleep—why I can't even stay up late enough to watch all of the television—I just drop off to sleep. I have lots of energy too—now I can even get out in the yard and do the yard work. Yes HADACOL is wonderful—and you can bet your life I will never stop taking HADACOL."

Folks All Over the Country whose systems were deficient in Vitamins B¹, B², Niacin, and Iron, have been helped by HADACOL and HADACOL can help you, too, if you suffer from stomach distress, insomnia caused by upset stomach, vague aches and pains, or a general run-down condition, when they are caused by such deficiencies.

That's the kind of product you want—that's the kind you should buy and that's the kind you should start taking NOW!

Give remarkable HADACOL a chance to benefit you. Remember, you have nothing to lose. HADACOL will make you feel better after the first few bottles you take, or your money will be refunded. Only $1.25 for Trial size; Large Family or Hospital size, $3.50.

If your druggist does not have HADACOL, order direct from The LeBlanc Corporation, Lafayette, Louisiana. Send no money. Just your name and address on a penny post card. Pay postman. State whether you want the $3.50 hospital economy size or $1.25 trial size. Remember, money cheerfully refunded unless you are 100% satisfied.—Adv.

WHY DOES SANTA PERSIST?

'Rightness' of Belief in Him Is Subject of Eternal Debate

WHO CAN ANSWER the riddle: Why does Santa Claus persist? Is is good or bad for children to believe in him? Teachers, psychiatrists and other specialists in human behavior at the juvenile level differ. The Santa Claus myth has strong convictions in its favor and convictions just as strong opposing it.

Children whose very progressive parents have explained to them that Santa Claus is only a myth have not been easy to convince. They fix their surprised parents with the coolest of condescending stares. They don't agree with the psychiatrists who say that a child who really believes in Santa Claus has had his thinking ability impaired. Even grownups berate the destroyers of the illusion.

Evidently Santa fills such a basic human need that it's not safe to tell people that he is fantasy. And its more dangerous to try to prove it.

Belief in Santa satisfied children's need for love and security. They keep this belief as long as they need it, carrying their belief through various stages—they fear him, trust him, love him and then doubt him. But they never completely doubt him, no matter how realistic they become, and they remember with joy the days of their utter credulity.

Psychiatrists fear that letting the child become possessed with the myth tends to make the adult attempt to preserve the infant pleasure subconsciously throughout life and remain emotionally immature.

And experts question whether children should be taught to believe literally something that is not literally true. One expert says:

"There is no sound psychological reason that I know of for children not enjoying the Santa myth as long as they know that it is not true. (But) if a child at 4 or 5 years of age can believe that one person can come down all the chimneys of the world in one night, and can fly through the air with reindeer and a sleigh and necessarily a heavy load, the child's whole relation with reality and whole ability to think clearly in terms of cause and effect have been seriously damaged or permanently destroyed. He will have learned that to think in relation to the evidence of his own eyes leads only to confusion and fear.

UNIVERSAL SYMBOL

Every Nation Has Christmas Bells

The nations of the world have their individual symbols of Christmas. But there is one universal symbol—the bells of Christmas.

In a way this is strange since bells were not associated with the church until about 400 A.D. when an Italian bishop installed them in his church. Some authorities, however, claim that it wasn't until 604 that the first bells were placed in churches.

Whatever the date, the custom has grown until there is perhaps no use of church bells so widely known in Christian countries as the ringing of chimes to herald the advent of the birth of Christ. From one end of the country to the other bells peal the story of "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men."

PHOSPHATE GOOD FOR LEMON TREES

That lemon trees respond to applications of phosphate in some California soils has been proved for the first tiime in field experiments by the University of California Citrus Experiment Station.

Phosphate fertilization produced an increase in the amount and vigor of foliage and a higher yield of fruit.

This was reported by D. G. Aldrich, associate chemist at the Experiment Station, and J. J. Coony, San Diego county farm advisor, as the result of experiments using phosphate and potassium singly and combined in San Diego and Ventura county orchards. Similar experiments are now under way in Santa Barbara county.

Lemon trees deficient in phosphate are marked by a brown to black leaf spot and sparse foliage which has a general gray-green to bronze color. And they suffer a decline in yield. It was previously thought that these symptoms principally indicate potassium deficiency, but Aldrich and Coony report that extensive analyses of affected leaves show that lack of phosphate is the dominant cause.

The researchers caution lemon growers that similar symptons may occur sporadically in groves where such diseases as shell bark, dry bark, and gummosis are serious. Phosphate applications probably can not correct these cases.

The experiments are to be continued and expanded. Reports on results will be published by the College of Agriculture.

The sacred rights of man are not to be rummaged from among old parchments, or musty records. They are written as with a sunbeam in the whole volume of human nature by the hand of divinity itself and can never be erased by mortal power.—Alexander Hamilton.

VISTA LA MESA School News

Mrs. Cornelius' fourth and fifth grade class enjoyed a Christmas party on Friday. Groups of students pantomined Christmas songs as part of the entertainment. The Loretta Yooung presentation of the record, "The Littlest Angel" was an interesting highlight of the party. The class appreciated the assistance of Mrs. Herman Bryant, room mother, who prepared amusing cookie Santa Claus packages for the group.

Mrs. Snell's second grade class went to Conkling"s Bakery on December 7, in connection with a class study of the bakery and the story of bread. Twenty-seven children, along with Mrs. Snell and three room mothers, Mmes Ewell Brady, Fred Knapp, and Richard Hendee, made the trip by school bus. The children saw many things about breadmaking that they had previously read about and discussed in class. Especially did they enjoy the slices of birthday cake and the ginger bread Santa Claus which the manager gave them.

Mrs. Hunt's first grade had their Christmas party last Friday morning, the day before vacation began. Mrs. Chester Smith and Mrs. Virgil Anderson, room mothers, assisted with refreshments. Santa Claus visited the class during the party and gave candy canes to all. The boys and girls played games and sang Christmas carols.

The Christmas atmosphere was further enhanced at the Vista La Mesa School on last Wednesday when the members of the student council decorated the large tree in the lunch area. Mr. Brogan's fourth graders contributed a large banner, printed Merry Christmas, which provided a nice background for the tree.

The Christmas party in the afternoon fourth grade started with the singing of carols and the playing of games. Then, with the assistance of Mrs. Richard Wells and Mrs. Harry Denison, refreshments were served. The afternoon was climaxed by the arrival of Santa, who passed out candy, and the exchanging of gifts.

The parents of all the kindergarten children at Vista La Mesa were in vited to hear them sing Christmas songs on Friday. Santa visited the room and presented each child with a candy cane. The pupils made clever gifts for their parents. New pupils in the morning kindergarten are Barbara Mueller, 4108 Massachussets Ave., and Linda Lou Lampton, of 3456 King Street.

The afternoon first grade, Mrs. Roberts' room, entertained their parents with a Christmas program before the class party on Friday. Songs were sung by the group, and nine children demonstrated their ability to spell the word Christmas. Elaine Cox recited "Why Do the Bells for Christmas Ring" and Cherid Mallette gave a baton demonstration. Ice cream and cookies were served the children by room mothers Mrs. A. Shawky and Mrs. W. Hopson, assisted by many other mothers. The children expressed their thanks to the Vista La Mesa P.-T.A. for their donation of candy canes.

A Christmas Eve Vesper service of carols and candlelight will be held at 5 p. m. The popularity of this service is due largely to the beautiful candlelight setting and the opportunity for group singing of all the old familiar Christmas Carols. Says the pastor, "It is the one service that always seems to mean the most to all who attend. Its quiet simplicity seems to strike a responsive chord in the hearts of all who hope for genuine peace on earth and good will among men. We are happy that our Church is large enough that we can invite folks of the entire community to attend."

Programs and parties for students and their parents were given during last week, prior to the Christmas vacation. In the junior high, two eight grade classes, 8-2 and 8-3, held a dance at the Community Center on Friday, from 1:00 until 3:00 p.m. The dancing included various contests and also square dancing. Delicious refreshments were served, and the class members exchanged gifts. Committee members who were responsible for the successful party were Joy Johnson, Beverly Loper, Ted Funk, Margie Schleif, Karl Jordon, Jerry Moulder, Sally Thibeault, and George Hoover. Harry Butler, social studies teacher, acted as sponsor.

In the seventh grade, the 7-1 group presented a Christmas program before the party activities. Robert Hensey played two numbers on the saxaphone, "Tea For Two" and "Santa Claus is Coming to Town". Shirley Quist sang "White Christmas", and Janice Jowett sang "On a Dreamer's Holiday". Joyce Herbert, in a beautiful white costume, presented a ballet dance. "The Night Before Christmas" was read by Beryl Scott, and the quartet, with Sonja Friedericksen, Janice Jowett, Peggy Lester, and Shirley Quist, sang "The First Noel." They also led the entire class in Christmas carols. Leonard Graham announced the program. A class party, with dancing and refreshments, and the exchange of gifts, was held from 1:00 until 3:00 p. m. Mrs. Margaret L. Darroch was the sponsor.

In Mrs. Evelyn Whalen's class, a party with dancing and games was held. Delicious refreshments, which included hot dogs, potato salad, cake, and soft drinks, were served to the class while they exchanged gifts. Room mothers Mrs. Fisher and Mrs. Lairsey assisted.

The 7-4 class of Mr. Davis also held a class dance during Friday afternoon. Committee members who assisted with preparations and refreshments were Deanie Whalen, Julie Connelly, Melvin Robinson, Bert Morehead, and Charlotte Norris.

Mr. Frailey's 7-3 group held a combined Christmas party and program on Friday afternoon, with Jerry Milner, Billie Sue Little, Dona Vogler, Jerry Kegley, and Leota Bolander, chairmen of committees. Students who helped entertain with a special Christmas program were Jerry Milner, who played carols on the electric guitar; Christine Johnson, a piano solo; Russell Lurcook, a comedy skit; Richard Quist, a saxaphone solo; and members of the girls glee club. Dancing, the exchange of gifts, and refreshments, followed the program. Mothers who assisted were Mrs. Paul Hendrick and Mrs. Norman Roberts.

Parties were also held by the 8-4 group and 8-1 class in the junior high.

In Mrs. Tuthill's pre-first class, the Christmas party and the lovely tree were enjoyed by all. Many of the mothers assisted Mrs. Reenan Shoemaker, room mother, in preparing dainty cookies. The refreshments were attractively wrapped with candy canes attached.

Mrs. Jensen's third grade class presented a Christmas program for their parents and friends on Thursday. Every child in the class took part in the planning and presenting of the program, which included two short plays, a number of carols by the chorus, a vocal solo, and a piano solo. On Friday they all enjoyed a party given by the room mothers, Mrs. Clarence Sommers, and their teacher.

The second grade children in Mrs. Rogers' class had an amateur program as part of their Christmas celebration. Girls from the class sang carols, Kristin Amundson danced, and Guy Hunter and John Lehton each played a piano solo. Mrs. Kay Lehton, room mother, assisted Mrs. Rogers with the party.

In Mrs. Hacker's fourth grade room, the boys and girls had a Mexican Christmas party. They have been studying Mexico in social studies. Two pinatos were suspended from wire, one for the boys and one for the girls. There was a lively scramble for the packages of Mexican candy and cookies when they were broken. This was followed by the exchange of gifts and games.

The third graders in Mrs. Barrett's room held a Christmas party in the classroom. They listened to Christmas records while they ate their goodies. Mrs. Rutherford, the room mother, acted as Santa Claus and handed out gifts to everyone. Other mothers who assisted were Mrs. Howard Jenkins, and Mrs. Irwin Johnson. The boys and girls later played games.

Members of the Junior Red Cross councils throughout the Lemon Grove District were busy during the last week of school before vacation packing gift boxes for boys and girls in stricken areas overseas. These will be sent from the San Diego Chapter to Washington, D. C., from where they will be shipped to foreign countries for April delivery. Students also made menu covers, table favors, and decorations to be used in hospitals and homes for children throughout the country. After the holidays, work will begin in the schools on the construction of scrapbooks for children in other lands.

Triumphant Minority

THE REPUBLICANS did a lot of hilarious shouting over the result of the last election, but with all of it they cannot, voting as a unit, which they will not, pass or prevent the passage of any piece of legislation in the 82nd congress.

But because there are two factions in the Democratic party, one favoring the policies of the President, and the other faction, the Dixiecrats, opposed to those policies, a combination of Dixiecrats and Republicans, can and will control legislation over the next two years. The Dixiecrats will be the minority that will say what shall pass and what shall not.

That coalition of Republicans and southern Democrats has largely controlled legislation through the 81st congress. In a large way, it has prevented the passage of the President's Fair Deal measures during the session now closing. It stopped the passage of F.E.P.C., the Brannan farm plan, socialized medicine, the repeal of the Taft-Hartley law, universal military training, educational assistance and some others the President had proposed to the 81st congress.

The southern Democrats have insisted that all such legislation is an infringement on the constitutional rights of the states, that it calls for centralized government planning, that it borders on socialism, or as Governor Byrnes calls it, statism. They would have none of it. A combination of Republicans and Dixiecrats stopped much of it. It is because of the strengthening of that coalition that the Fair Deal and what is left of the New Deal has been thrown into discard. That was the reason for the Republican hilarity.

In the 82nd congress it will be a minority that will dictate the passage of legislation. That minority is the southern Democrats. Without them the Republicans can accomplish nothing, either in passing or in stopping legislation, and without the Republicans, the Dixiecrats are helpless. The combination will probably result in the southern Democrats regaining control of the Democratic party under the guidance of Governor Byrnes of South Carolina, and the old cleavage between the two parties again will become an actuality. The Jeffersonian Democrats, who lost control of the party and the party machinery at the Chicago convention of 1932 when Roosevelt was first nominated, will, as a minority, dictate what the policy of the party will be during the session of the 82nd congress.

The one point on which the Dixiecrats, the Republicans and the President will agree is that of federal taxes, that we may pay as we go in rearming for defense, rather than add to our already tremendous national debt through deficit financing. But appropriations for Europe, or for the President's "point 4" will not get far unless other nations are more willing than in the past to meet American terms. Chairman Doughton, of the appropriations committee, will look askance at any appropriation that does not comply with American conditions.

The next presidential election in 1952 will, in all probability, be fought out along all Republican-Democratic issues. The Democratic party will again be controlled by the Jeffersonian Democrats under the leadership of Governor Byrnes. It will be a party of Jefferson and Jackson as it was in the days of Cleveland, Wilson, and down to the time of Roosevelt and Truman. During the 82nd congress, we will not have a two party system, but one party opposed by two minorities. After another election, we should again get back to the customary two parties.

It was that possibility, the passing of the New Deal and the Fair Deal, that caused the Republican shouting. They realized, following the counting of the votes, that both the New Deal and the Fair Deal are dead, and they welcome the old line of political cleavage. It means free enterprise, as the American system, will continue. An upward trend in the stock market, despite the increased corporation taxes to be faced, gave us the answer.

Those North Koreans were tough, but the GIs and the marines know what to do with the tough babies.

The politician who is elected to public office because he is a politician, not because he is a statesman, considers his personal interests as of first importance, that of his party as second, and that of the nation as third, if at all. First of all, such men look out for the votes that will keep them in office, and that is when they should be turned out. No one who wants to serve his interests more than that of the people has any right to be feeding at the public trough.

Veteran Coach Disparages the T

By GRANTLAND RICE

POP WARNER not only invented the famous single and double wing in football but he insists they are a much better form of attack than the now-popular T.

I paid Pop a visit recently at his home in Palo Alto where one of football's greatest coaches still follows the game that he helped to make famous.

"I invented the Grantland Rice single wing around 1906," Pop said. "When the new rules of that year prevented you from shoving or helping a runner, I saw at once that a new form was needed. We needed something that would take care both of the running game and the new forward pass. The single wing gave an offense the chance for deception that it hadn't had before. Later on around 1911, I brought out the double wing, an improvement on the single.

"Now I'll tell you why the double wing is a big improvement on the T. The forward pass today is a big part of any sound football attack, although it is frequently overused. The forward pass doesn't fit in with the T. In the T the quarterback or passer must run backwards several yards. Then he must turn and look to find his target. This is awkward and baffling. In the double wing the passer is back a trifle but he is facing his field. He has a full view of all his receivers. He is ready for quick action.

"I see most of my games today over television," the bushy white-haired veteran said. "I view both college and pro teams. It amazes me to see how often the passer, turning and running backwards, is thrown for a 10- or 12-yard loss. That could never happen with the single or double wing. It happens frequently with the T where teams will often lose from 30 to 50 yards while the passer is looking for a target.

"The single and double wing are coming back again," Pop continued. "Such teams as Princeton, U.C.L.A., and many others have shown how effective my old formations are against rivals sticking to the T and too often wondering why their passing game won't work."

A Long Way Back

Pop began his coaching career at Georgia around 1895 after a summer stint at Iowa. That embraces many, many yesterdays.

I asked Pop who invented or first worked out the spiral pass.

"I don't think anyone knows," Pop said. "The pass came into the game in 1906. It was easy to see from the start that throwing a football end over end was not the best way. Many coaches and passers began experimenting with the spiral early in 1906. I only know that Mt. Pleasant was a fine spiral passer at Carlisle around that time. That's almost like saying somebody invented throwing or running."

I was but a youngster when I first saw one of Pop's teams play against Vanderbilt in 1896. He was then with the University of Georgia. But he made and kept his fame with other institutions — Carlisle, Pittsburgh and Stanford. He later did well at Temple where his teams were always feared.

But it was really at Carlisle where he had his greatest success. No other college had such brilliant backs as Thorpe, Cayac, Guyon, Mt. Pleasant and many, many more who are still remembered. He also had great lines.

"A funny thing about the Indian," Pop said, "he was our best amateur. He really played the game only because he loved it. For example, on a rainy day or on a muddy field the Indian's play fell away badly. He didn't think it was any fun to play in the rain and he was playing for fun. They were also more popular at hotels than white teams. They were better behaved. They had a definite dignity that the white race lacked.

Pop laughed at his comparison of Thorpe and Nevers. "They were both magnificient," he said. "Thorpe on the days he felt like playing stood alone. He could run, pass, kick, catch passes, block and tackle. But Ernie was always there for 60 minutes of the best he had—and he had plenty.

"I would say Thorpe was the best all-around back of football."

It Can Happen Quickly

The midwest is still churned up over the Cleveland-Boudreau-Lopez deal. Two years ago at this date, back in 1948, Lou Boudreau-Lopez was baseball's sweetheart. Only 32 years old he had just known his greatest year as a player and his best year as a vanning manager.

Then the axe fell—as it has fallen so many times before. It's a tough life—any pro game is—when you are not winning. Boudreau took a drop from his 1948 average.

Who can say whether Billy Meyer of Pittsburgh is a very good manager or just an ordinary leader? All you know is that Pittsburgh had few big league ballplayers aboard. Branch Rickey has tackled many tough jobs in his long span, but his Pirate assignment is the toughest, in spite of all the money Pittsburgh owners have spent. But we have found few owners who have made headway merely by firing first class managers.

Choosing A Rifle

If you are selecting a hunting rifle for your own use for the first time, your first consideration should of course be to find the particular model and caliber of rifle that best fits your individual needs.

For the past 50 years the grand old favorite of both Western and Northern hunters has been the 30-30, a cartridge made famous by the Model 94 Winchester and now chambered in the lever action and pump guns made by Savage and Remington.

This cartridge is loaded with 110, 150, and 170-grain soft nose bullets and is an effective game-getter for anything up to and including elk. Most hunters prefer the 170-grain bullet for average hunting and this projectile in the hi-speed load leaves the muzzle at around 2200 foot-seconds velocity—sufficient to effectively halt any North American game if the shot is well placed. The lighter projectiles attain a correspondingly higher velocity and are generally preferred for predatory animals such as coyotes, wolves, etc.

A close second in the American hunting rifle popularity contest is the .30-06—the famous U. S. military cartridge with slight modifications for big game hunting. No other cartridge can surpass this excellent shell for accuracy, versatility, and availability.

Remington, Winchester, and Savage all make excellent rifles for .30-06 ammunition, and custom modifications of Springfield and Mauser actions are made for the cartridge by Sedgley, Griffin & Howe, and others.

A notable addition to the list of favorite big game rifles is the Remington 721. It is chambered for .30-06 Springfield, .270 Winchester or .300 Magnum ammunition. The bolt action is short and strong and cocks on opening. The cartridge is completely supported and enclosed by the encased bolthead and barrel. The Remington 721 is rapidly growing in popularity because of its light weight and streamlined appearance.

In addition to these, there are a dozen other popular cartridges and a half-dozen well-known rifles that are excellent hunting arms to choose from.

In any case, first consideration is a cartridge heavy enough to kill game cleanly and quickly.

Wildlife today has not only to fear man's gun, trap, and dog. The automobile is coming in for an increasing share of our wild animals, according to reports of conservation agents.

Commonsense Rules

With another hunting season upon us, the Missouri conservation commission urges hunters to use caution and courtesy in the woods and fields. It will pay to observe the ten commandments of safe hunting:

1. Before hunting, check the gun to be sure it is free of obstructions in the bore, such as mud, old gunrags, spiders, etc.
2. Secure permission to hunt before trespassing. Remember, trespassing is not only illegal but will spoil your hunting and perhaps that of the sportsmen to follow you.
3. Never load a gun until actually on the hunting territory and don't point a gun at anything you don't intend to shoot.
4. Know where members of the party are at all times.
5. Don't hunt in areas near people, livestock or poultry.
6. Empty gun before climbing fences or other obstruction or before setting it down.
7. Never shoot at flat, hard surfaces or at water . . . remember, a bullet skips better than a rock . . . and kills.
8. Leave part of the game for another day.
9. Gunpowder, like gasoline, does not mix with alcohol.
10. Observe state and federal regulations.

These 10 rules are easy to follow . . . easy to forget. If you do follow them, you're in for some safe hunting in our great outdoors.

Many consider the beaver quite a harmless animal. When aroused, however, it becomes one of the deadliest of water fighters, easily killing a hunting dog it attacked in the water.

The latest animals to be "discovered" are the kouprey, "new" kind of wild ox found in Indo-China in 1937, and the okapi "discovered" in the Belgian Congo in 1900.

Game Cycles

Many theories have been advanced. But no single factor or group of factors has been found that is generally accepted as the primary cause of the synchronized periods of abundance and scarcity of game. Sun spots have cycles of abundance which were long thought to affect animal populations. In a few cases, direct correlations could be made with game cycles, but for the most part the tie-up is vague. Investigators are puzzled.

SHORT STORY

Easy Touch

By Ona Freeman Lathrop

THE KID HAD BEEN following him for two blocks now. How was a guy to pick up any spare dough with a goggle-eyed urchin at his heels? You couldn't do it, that's all. He turned and waited for the kid to catch up.

3-Minute Fiction

"Say, beat it, will you? G'wan home. This is a tough neighborhood. Your ma'll be worried about you."

The kid dug his frazzled shoe-toe in the dirt. He was a skinny little rat under the ragged gray sweater and the thin patched jeans, once you took a good look at him. His tow hair hung in little wisps from under the old torn cap, but his big brown eyes looked trusting. You couldn't hit a kid with eyes like that. Hank Nolan winced as he remembered how he'd always been an old softie for brown eyes.

The kid whined, "I'm hungry. There's nothin' for supper. I thought—"

"Well, you thought wrong. I'm not eatin' either. I'm broke—you hear me? Broke, I said." Now why did the kid's eyes have to bore through you like that? Why couldn't he go along home? Hank tried once more, "Now you git for home!"

When he glanced back a minute later, the kid was standing still in his tracks. Hank ambled on toward the bright lights. If Katy hadn't jumped on him like that when he got home, he wouldn't be feeling so lousy and low. Always harping about him getting a steady job.

"You're just a lazy good-for-nothing bum any more, Hank Nolan," she'd told him. "Not working half the time. How do you expect me to keep the table set on nickels and dimes? There are plenty of jobs, even if they aren't your line. Either you get one or get out of here and don't come back. I'm sick of this." And she'd slammed the door behind him.

Well, let her rave. If he couldn't get his old job back—the kind he had before he went to the army—he wasn't going to take any old job that came along.

A FELLOW WAS staggering out of Scotty's tavern. He had on a good dark suit and soft fedora. Probably had a week's pay in his pocket, except what he'd left at Scotty's. Looked like an easy touch. Hank dodged back into the doorway of Mel's Eat Shop, with its ever-present pancake grill in the window turning up golden-brown cakes and its usual sign on the door, "Waiter Wanted." Ha! That was a laugh, "Waiter Wanted". Juggling trays in a joint like that!

The fellow was coming this way all right. He'd be here in a minute. Hank glanced up and down the street to see if there were any cops in sight. Not a soul—for once the street was deserted—except the kid.

The fellow was shuffling along close to Mel's place now. It would be a cinch—would have been a cinch, Hank thought. But he couldn't do it. Not with those big, brown eyes watching. Giving him the lowdown on what kind of a guy he really was. Nope, he couldn't do it.

The kid was a skinny little rat with wisps of tow hair sticking out from under the old torn cap.

Hank let the fellow go on past. He faded into the Eat Shop. Mel was at the cash register by the door. There was a nose flattened against the outside of the pancake window, and two big brown eyes were peering through hungrily at the steaming cakes.

"That job still open for a waiter, Mel?" Hank asked.

"Sure is, Hank. You want to begin right now? We're in a jam."

"Be glad to," Hank answered, "if you could advance me a dollar or two." He pocketed the dollar bills Mel flipped to him and opened the door. "Be right back," he called to Mel.

And then to the big brown eyes he said, "Here, kid, take this home to your ma and tell her to get something good for supper. Tell her her old man's got a steady job at last. And eat yourself a good meal tonight."

The brown eyes—so much like Katy's—stared. "Gee, thanks Pop. Be seein' you." And the ragged sweater went shooting out of sight down the street. Hank swaggered in like a new man and put on the white apron Mel handed him.

Southernmost Town

Ushuaia, capital of Argentina's Tierra del Fuego territory, ranks as the southernmost town in the world. It has a bustling suburb, Empresa Borsari, which sprang up almost overnight in 1948. In that year several hundred Italian colonists were settled in the new community to further the Argentine projects of making Ushuaia into a naval base and tourist port.

Early Vision Theory

Empedocles, Greek scientist of about 500 B. C., and other savants believed the eyes emitted rays which struck an object and bounced back to produce vision. Now, of course, it is know that the object sends out waves of reflections which the eyes pick up and transmit to the brain, where the image is formed and interpreted.

California Farms

According to latest figures available there are in California some 63,000 farms selling fresh fruits and nuts, and 12,000 farms selling vegetables. Close to 2,000 fresh fruit and vegetable shippers are operating in the state.

Wall Stains

Women who have trouble with grease on the wall behind the stove can avoid this difficulty by painting with a coat of colorless shellac. A wet rag will then remove grease-spots at any time.

Children's Imagination

Children have great imaginative powers and can be provided with very rich experiences at little or no expense. This is true, for example, in permitting children to turn their own backyards into camp sites if a costly trip is out of the question. A roasting weiner smells almost as good at home as in the Maine woods, and a clothesline tent is an adequate tepee.

Shy Dogs

Shyness in dogs is incurable according to most experts. Recent experiments at Cornell university indicate that excessive shyness is almost wholly hereditary. Puppies born during prolonged studies of 135 dogs displayed this shyness, even though they never had been in contact with mistreatment or brutality in any form.

Steel for Soldiers

A medieval knight and his steed might together carry as much as 200 pounds of iron and steel. For each soldier in America's fighting forces in the first year of World War II, the nation produced 24,600 pounds of steel.

Banner Year

1949 was a record making year for the auto industry. Peaks were reached in production, car and truck registrations, gasoline consumption, vehicle mileage traveled and in tax revenues generated by the industry.

Alexander H. Stevens, Senator from Georgia and later Vice-President of the Confederacy, was the smallest man in the Senate, weighing less than eighty pounds, and standing less than five feet high. A huge Western Congressman once frothed at the mouth, seeking to answer him. "You! You! Why, I could swallow you, and never know I'd et a thing!"

"In that case, you'd have more brains in your belly than you ever had in you head," replied Stevens.

Co-Star

It seems that when the Crown Prince of the Royal Family of Barrymores was appearing on Broadway in the stage production of "Hamlet," J—— C—— occupied a stage box at one of the matinee performances.

It is quite a well-known fact that Miss C—— on all her excursions in to the public limelight is not only seen but heard—and this particular afternoon proved no exception to the rule.

John Barrymore hadn't been on the stage five minutes when he knew that J—— C—— was in the audience. But he didn't acknowledge her preesence until the end of the performance when, in making his customary curtain speech, he bowed in the direction of Miss C——'s box and said:

"And, in conclusion, may I take this opportunity to thank Miss J—— C—— for the privilege of co-starring with her this afternoon?"

Wonder Why?

"I've eaten beef all my life, and now I'm as strong as an ox!"

"That's funny, I've eaten fish all my life and I can't swim a stroke."

Yep, Its Here!

Calvin Coolidge had humor and sense enough to escape that exaggeration of the ego which afflicts a good many of our Presidents. Awakening from a nap in the middle of a presidential executive day, he opened his eyes, he grinned and asked a friend, "Is the counrty still here?"

Long Speech

Will Rogers, acting as toastmaster at a dinner one evening, was annoyed by the lengthy talk of the man he had just introduced. The long-winded bore finally ended his oratory and Rogers arose and said, "You have just listened to that famous Chinese statesman, On Too Long."

Here's one for platinum rings only: Put some diluted laundry bleach in a glass and drop the ring in it for half an hour. It will be clean when you take it out.

Gold braid can be cleaned and brightened by brushing it first with a stiff brush and then rubbing powdered alum well into the braid. Let the alum remain, and the braid will take on a brighter look after an hour or two.

WHEN SLEEP WON'T COME AND YOU FEEL GLUM
Use Chewing-Gum Laxative—
REMOVES WASTE... NOT GOOD FOOD
• When you can't sleep—feel just awful because you need a laxative — do as MILLIONS do — chew FEEN-A-MINT.
FEEN-A-MINT is wonderfully different! Doctors say many other laxatives start their "flushing" action too soon ... right in the stomach. Large doses of such laxatives upset digestion, flush away nourishing food you need for health and energy ... you feel weak, worn out.
But gentle FEEN-A-MINT taken as recommended, works chiefly in the lower bowel where it removes only waste, not good food! You avoid that weak, tired feeling. Use FEEN-A-MINT and feel fine, full of life! 25¢, 50¢, or only 10¢

Lemon Grove PTA

Lovely Christmas decorations in the cafeteria added to the enjoyment of the meeting of Lemon Grove PTA last Thursday evening.

Mrs. Krimsky and Mrs. Bengston sang a duet accompanied on the violin by Kathy Lou Pendergast, who also played a solo and accompaniments for other singing.

The group voted to purchase new dishes and also a set of encyclopedias for the lower grades.

A Christmas party and movies will be given for the Safety Patrol and school safeties.

Plans were started for a Valentine dance.

Mrs. Mulkey's kindergarten won the attendance award.

It is not the facts which guide the conduct of men, but their opinions about facts; which may be entirely wrong. We can only make them right by discussion. —Sir Norman Angell
